Celebrate Birthday

Two hundred fifty people attended Mrs. L. W. Carter's birthday at her old home at Shipman, Nelson County on the 6th of June. Many of her friends, relatives, and classmates were there from Alexandria, Bedford, Clifton Forge, Roanoke, Charlottesville, Lynchburg, Norwood, Lovingston, Shipman and Appomattox.

This will be a day long remembered by Mrs. Carter. Anything and everything in the food line was there and a plenty of it, thanks to my friends.

A poem was read by a retired school teacher that taught there for years.

Thanks for the good rains we have received since last we met. Things will grow now. The combination of sunshine, rain, good earth, good seed and plants and proper attention usually works Nature's miracle.

Proud of the newly installed street signs in the Town of Appomattox. Neat white on green. The workmen really did their job in a hurry. It seemed one day I was a bit ashamed of so many old and rusty street signs and presto, we had bright new ones up.

"My candle burns at both ends,
It will not last the night;
But oh my foes and ah my friends,
It gives a lovely light."

Edna Vincent Millay wrote the above, and I had a note to compare it with the daylily. They do not survive long when brought indoors. I have a lot of them this year and cannot resist bringing them into the lyng room, even if'n they have to be pitched the next morning. But in the last batch I brought in, half a dozen have survived and now are in their third day of assorted glory.

The farmer's chores seem the same thing over and over, milk the cows, slop the hogs, feed the chickens, and the same for the farmer's wife, cooking, cleaning, sewing, canning and keeping the phone to ring and there will be someone to talk with. But the rewards are plentiful. A bit of independence, making decisions, and most of all seeing the harvest from your toil. You can make a good life most anywhere if you want to badly enough. I firmly believe the good outweighs the bad, and there is an awesome lot of good in Appomattox!

This is written Monday, June 21, said to be the longest day of the year. Ah yes, but all too short for me.

For years I have been a regular reader of the Virginia Town and City magazine. Like to know what other towns are doing. Latest issue reveals a proposal by a humane group that eats as well as dogs be licensed. Would guess there will be a lot of pro and con on that, down Chesapeake way.

Methodist churches are making regular pastoral changes. Rev. Henry E. Riley, Jr. is leaving our Memorial United Methodist Church after a successful pastorate, and we wish him well. Thursday is moving day. The incoming minister has been at Kenbridge.

This is the 35th year of presentation of the outdoor drama, The Lost Colony, at Manteo, N.C. I attended a performance of this Paul Green show some years ago, and it was well worth the trip. In fact, any trip done around Manteo, Nags Head and the Outer Banks is worthwhile.

The late President Theodore Roosevelt is quoted as having said, "I am just an average man, but, by thunder, I work at it harder."

Success to the many Vacation Bible Schools in progress. The more you learn about The Bible the better your chances in life, and after life.

Poet's corner:
When it's grasscutting time in Appomattox
And the mowers unile to roar;
No matter how well you do it,
It'll have to be done some more.

Fourth of July coming up. I plan to observe it on Martha Street, which is about a nice a place as I know. If you travel, be careful, for losing readers is something I cannot afford. Thanks for reading and seeya next week.

Park Service Opens Clover Hill Tavern

Appomattox Court House National Park has recently reopened the old Clover Hill Tavern (pictured above) for visitation. Built by Alexander Patteson in 1819, and used as a stage stop on the Richmond-Lynchburg Stage Road, the Tavern (hotel) after the surrender became the headquarters of Union General George H. Sharpe who was in charge of parolling the Confederate soldiers.

Exhibits in the Clover Hill Tavern building include an 1888 model of the Court House village and the furnished office of the Union Provost Marshall as well as other exhibits pertaining to the surrender of the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia.

Appomattox Court House National Historical Park is open daily 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. and is located two miles north of U.S. Route 460 on Virginia Route 24. A 15-minute interpretive slide program is given in the Court House Visitor Center every half hour and talks on the surrender are given seven times daily during the summer.

Three living history character actors in period dress representing people who witnessed the events of the surrender also give historical talks and answer questions so that park visitors may more fully understand historic events which occurred at Appomattox Court House.

A one dollar per vehicle entrance fee is charged from April through October.
